Ayn Rand Expert Discusses the Mind as Hero in Lawrence University Address

Posted on: April 15th, 2003 by Rick Peterson

One of the world's leading proponents of objectivism discusses philosopher Ayn Rand's literary portrayal of the human thinker as the ultimate hero in an address at Lawrence University.

Andrew Bernstein, adjunct professor of philosophy at Pace University, presents "The Mind as Hero in Ayn Rand's 'Atlas Shrugged'" Tuesday, April 22 at 8 p.m. in Main Hall, Room 216.

A senior writer at the Ayn Rand Institute, a California-based think tank that promotes the philosophy of objectivism, Bernstein is a frequent talk radio and television guest and has written widely on philosophical issues, including the need for heroes in our lives and the application of philosophical principles on topics ranging from volunteerism to war. His first novel, "Heart of a Pagan," was published in 2002. His next book, "The Capitalist Manifesto," is scheduled for publication next year.
